

SOCIETY

CONTINUED FROM PAGE FOUR.

William Eches Fendall is president, at the Hotel Lafayette. Mrs. Myron Parkes, Jr., will preside at the tea table and assisting her will be Mrs. Brockridge Bayne, Mrs. Ormsby McCammon, Mrs. Harry Kerr, Miss Carol Wilson and Mrs. William Payne Meredith. Miss Catherine Burdette will have charge of the dancing and will be assisted by a number of this year's debutantes. Miss Hemphill will look after the postoffice and Miss Angelica Remy the grabbag. Mrs. Victor Kaufmann will have a sport table, assisted by Mrs. Newton E. Martin, Mrs. Charles L. Husey, and others. Mrs. Louis Lehr, assisted by Mrs. Brooke Lee, will have a booth of spring fancies, and Mrs. C. A. Richards will have the hats, assisted by Mrs. Walter Woodson, Mrs. J. P. Morton, Mrs. William Bryant and Mrs. Charles V. Wheeler. Lemonade and candy tables will be looked after by Mrs. Thomas Tallaferra and Miss Mullikin, respectively. Mrs. Joseph Wahl will assist Miss Mullikin and Mrs. Tallaferra will have assisting her Mrs. Frank Andrews, Mrs. C. C. Marbury and Mrs. Ward. Mrs. Theodore Baldwin, Jr., will have a table of flowers, and Miss Judge a parasol booth.

Alliance Francaise Lectures

Among the people present at the Cosmos Club for the French lecture of the Alliance Francaise were: Mrs. Crozier, Countess de Colliere, Mr. and Mrs. Chatard, Mrs. P. W. Bartlett, Mr. Henry G. Croker, Mrs. J. Harriman, Mrs. G. H. Farnham, Mrs. Gillett, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Baldwin, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. J. L. Morehead, Mrs. Spencer Wood, Mrs. A. G. Winslow, Mrs. G. McClellan Chase, Miss J. Butler, and Mr. N. H. Darton.

The next and last lecture of the season will be given on Thursday, April 13, by M. J. Merlant. The subject will be, "Stereoisomisme dans la litterature Francaise."

The residents of Washington will have the opportunity to enjoy a French evening on April 12 at Rauscher's, when two one-act plays will be given by French amateurs.

The program, beginning at 8:15, will include piano selections by Mr. T. M. Fabian and vocal numbers by Mr. Paul Bleyden.

The performance is for the benefit of the French wounded soldiers.

The Social Calendar.

Mrs. Richardson Clover will entertain at a dance for her daughters, the Misses Clover, at the Country Club April 27.

Mrs. Francis S. Nash and Miss Nash will be at home Thursday for the last time this season.

Mrs. C. H. T. Lowndes has cards out for a luncheon on Saturday, April 15.

Mrs. Frederic R. Harris will be at home informally this afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock. Admiral and Mrs. Harris have recently come to Washington and have a home in Massachusetts avenue.

Miss Katherine Smith will entertain at a luncheon April 12 at Rauscher's.

Mrs. E. T. Pollock will be hostess at bridge April 13.

Mrs. Rollin C. Sanford will receive informally Tuesdays in April, at the Portland.

Mme. Roso will entertain at luncheon at Rauscher's April 25.

Mrs. Burney Chipperfield will be hostess at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock April 11.

A number of hospitalities have been arranged in honor of Miss Doris Drain, whose marriage to Mr. Edward Northrup Hay will take place April 28. Miss Lydia Clark will give a luncheon for her April 24 and on April 25 she will be the guest of honor at a luncheon with Miss Elizabeth Fulton as hostess.

That evening Miss Ellen Fillebrown will entertain the bridal party at supper, following the rehearsal. Miss Marie Peary will also entertain for Miss Drain probably at a luncheon on April 22.

Mrs. Leonard Hoffman has cards out for a tea on Thursday afternoon, April 27, at the Club of Colonial Dames, to meet Countess Spottiswood Mackin. Countess Spottiswood Mackin will be at home on Thursday, May 4, at 5 o'clock, at the Cordova.

Miss Eldegardo Hurley has cards out for a luncheon at the Highlands on Friday, April 14, in honor of Miss May Power and Miss Kelly.

News Notes of Society.

Mrs. Clover, wife of Admiral Richardson Clover, and their daughters, Miss Clover and Miss Beatrice Clover, will go to New York tomorrow to spend a week.

Bertram Block left Washington during the week for a few weeks' stay in New York.

Mrs. Henry Samek, of New York, is spending a few weeks in the city with her sister, Mrs. Norman Lucha.

Miss Ray Marks has returned to her home in Monticello, Fla., after a stay of a few weeks in the city.

Mr. Irving Strausburger, of New York, will spend a few weeks in town as the guest of relatives.

Miss Gertrude Meyer has returned to her home in Baltimore after a stay of a few weeks as the house guest of Miss Gladys Mayer.

Mrs. Thomas Roberts, Jr., of Philadelphia, has arrived for a few days' visit to her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Upshur Moorhead.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who has been in Alken, S. C., for several weeks, will leave there April 29 for Washington, where she will make a lengthy stay.

Miss Doris Durell, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Edward H. Durell, of Boston, who has been the house guest of Commander and Mrs. Harley H. Christy at Annapolis, has arrived for a visit to Miss Dorothy Mason. Later Miss Durell will be the house guest of Miss Louise Clark.

Mrs. Robert Carruthers Jeffers, of Charleston, W. Va., will come to Washington tomorrow to spend a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Nordlinger will return to their home this week after a fortnight spent in Atlantic City.

MISS EDITH GOODE, charming member of younger set, who entertained at a large tea at Rauscher's last week. Miss Goode is actively interested in the suffrage campaign and leaves Washington today for the West.

—Photo by Winston.

Mr. Eddie Strasburger and Mrs. Paul Coblenz, of Boston, will arrive on Thursday to be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Strasburger.

Miss Marguerite Kaufman will return tomorrow to her home in Macomb street, after a stay of some weeks in Brooklyn, N. Y., as the guest of Miss Helen Levy.

Miss Julia Goldsmith has returned to her home in Fredericksburg, Va., after a visit to her sister, Mrs. Rheims.

Mrs. S. Reichenstein left Washington last week to spend some time in Atlantic City, Philadelphia and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Rumsey who have occupied this season the residence of Mrs. Paul Bartlett, will open their country home at Westbury, Long Island, this month.

Mrs. Lars Anderson and Mrs. Henry T. Oxnard are among those who are registered for the National Service School next month.

Among the young people who will join the camp are Miss Francis Williams, Miss Elizabeth Harding, Miss Helen Wallach, Miss Camilla Lippincott, and Miss Helen Walcott.

Miss Alina Kronheim has returned to her home from a stay of some weeks in Brooklyn, N. Y., as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lazarus.

Mrs. R. Harris and daughter, Miss Lillian Harris, of New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. King.

Mrs. E. Wertheimer and son, Master E. Wertheimer, have returned to their home in Newport News, after a stay of some weeks in the city, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ganna.

The opening night of the Washington Suburban Club was celebrated on Sunday evening by an informal dance.

Mrs. A. Weyl has returned to her home after a stay of ten days in Atlantic City, at the Hotel Rudolf.

Capt. and Mrs. Josiah S. McKean have as their house guest Mrs. McKean's niece, Miss Leonie Van Doren, of New York. Miss Van Doren is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stuyvesant Hawhurst, of Hearts Estate Manor, East Chester, N. Y.

Mr. Sidney Jonas spent a few days in the city last week en route from New York to his home in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Mascher and little son, of Fairmont street, are spending some time with relatives in New York.

Miss Rhona Block, of New York, will arrive this week to spend the holidays with Miss Sara Koenigsberger.

Miss Edith Gracie is visiting in Philadelphia.

Mr. Emanuel Haas has returned to his home in Thirteenth street, after a tour of some weeks throughout the South.

Miss Madeline Krauskopf, of Philadelphia, has returned to her home after a short visit with Miss Erna Bliseman.

Miss Thelma Ullman has returned to her home in Fredericksburg, Va., after a stay of some weeks with friends in the city.

Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Draper have returned to Washington from New York, where they made a fortnight's stay. They will remain here.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be made at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft, and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.—Adv.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS.

An added impetus has been given to the spring season at the Greenbrier by the arrival of several cottagers, among whom is Countess Gogoyka, who has opened the cottage in Tansus Row, which she has taken for the spring season. Mrs. Charles N. Welch is expected from Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Slocum are planning to open their cottage very soon.

Following her custom of paying an annual spring visit to the Greenbrier, Mrs. Norman Williams has arrived from Washington and will take the cure while here. Miss Jane Judson accompanies her.

Mr. J. Wilson Leakin, Mr. John N. Steele and Mr. Samuel Tagar Steele, of Baltimore, are at the Greenbrier to take the cure and enjoy golf over the new links.

Mr. T. T. Aushberry, of Washington, was a member of a party motoring from Hot Springs to the Greenbrier on Tuesday for luncheon at the invitation of former Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio. Mrs. Archibald White was another member of the party.

Lady Williams Taylor, of Montreal, came to the Greenbrier from Havana with her daughter, Miss Brenda Williams Taylor, and spent several days here. A luncheon in her honor was given by Mr. George W. Stevens on his private car on Sunday. Lady Ross is expected to arrive here on the 15th from Quebec for a stay of several weeks.

Greenbrier guests contributed $1,250 on Tuesday evening to a collection taken for the benefit of the wounded French soldiers in France, following a lecture on French hospitals by Miss Irene Manby, of Montreal.

Mrs. David Stevenson and her sister, Miss Latrobe, of Baltimore, are among members of the Greenbrier colony. Mr. and Mrs. William Laurence Green, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Carter, Madame Dias Albertini and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wentworth, all of Paris, are members of the refugee set here.

OLD POINT, VA.

With a fancy dress ball given by Mr. George F. Adams at the Chamberlin on the 14th and the dinners, dances and luncheons that will mark the return of the United States battleships from the southern drill grounds the latter part of the week.

Old Point is again "a-butter" with the anticipation of the gayety of the Easter season. Already the army and navy contingent is gathering at the Chamberlin. Here are Rear Admiral Walter C. Cowles, U. S. N., and Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Thomas Holdup Stevens, of Washington, who has with her Miss Josephine B. Hall, of Short Hills; Mrs. George N. Martin, of Washington; Brigadier Gen. John M. K. Davis, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Davis, who are receiving cordial welcomes, congratulations and sympathy.

Congratulations upon their narrow and safe escape from the burning hotel at Maitland, Fla., and sympathy for the loss of all their baggage. Gen. Davis carries a cane, the only article owned by the landlord which was saved from the flames. They will spend April at the Chamberlin as has been their habit for many years.

Late arrivals include Mr. George B. McClellan, formerly mayor of New York, and Mrs. McClellan, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Hoyt and Mr. Henry R. Hoyt, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John W. Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon, of New York, Mr. John Satterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Curtiss, of Buffalo; Mrs. George L. Brown, daughter of Gen. Horatio C. King, of Brooklyn, who is spending the season at the Chamberlin; a flight in a Curtiss hydroplane Wednesday with Lieut. Vivian Hewitt, of the British Royal Naval Service. Visitors never tire of watching the approach and departure of the flying machines and Old Point Comfort has become an aviation center, with military aviators from many sections registered here.

Mrs. Thomas Holdup Stevens, of Washington, was among the many entertaining guests for dinner Saturday evening at the Hotel Chamberlin.

The Misses Mudd, of Maryland, daughters of Congressman Mudd, have been the guests of Lieut. Cannon, U. S. A., and Mrs. Cannon in the post. In their honor Lieut. Riley, U. S. A., gave a dinner recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Diggs spent the week-end at the Chamberlin, returning to Washington Monday.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

PLACE CARD SUGGESTIONS.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes thinks like a sage."—Bulwer Lytton. "The true essentials of a feast are only fun and food."—O. W. Holmes. "The empty spit never cherished wit. Minerva loves the ladder."—Carrington. "Room! make way! Hunger commands; my valor must obey!"—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Lips however rosy must be fed."—Aron. "Hungry as the sea and can digest as much."—Shakespeare.

For the physician guest: "Physicians mend or end us."—Byron. "When I was sick you gave me bitter medicine."—Milton. "For the musician: "Untwisting all the chains that tie the hidden soul of harmony."—Milton. "All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time."—Ruskin. "Seraphs share with thee knowledge; but Art, O man, is thine alone."—Schiller. "Not without art, but yet to nature true."—Churchill. "For the student: "Send thee manly patience with thy learning."—Beaumont and Fletcher. "Tutored in the rudiments of many desperate studies."—Shakespeare. "For the business man: "Seest thou a man diligent in business. He shall stand before kings."—Proverbs. "I like men who bring something to pass."—Vincennes. "For the literary one: "Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body."—Steels. "To divert at any time a troublesome fancy, run to thy books."—Thomas Fuller. "For the minister: "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."—Tennyson. "For the author: "The writings of the wise are the only riches our posterity cannot squander."—Landon. "For the wit: "I pray you jest, sir, as you sit at dinner."—Shakespeare. "To give her her due she has wit."—Congreve. "For the lawyer: "I stand here for law."—Shakespeare. "By the law whereof you are a well deserving pillar."—Shakespeare. "For the educator: "All knowledge is either delivered by teachers or attained by men's proper endeavors."—Bacon. "Whilist that the child is young let him be instructed in virtue and literature."—Livy. "For 'and others: "Put on your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends that purpose merriment."—Shakespeare. "The man who smokes